The third largest island in the Mediterranean sea after Sicily and Sardinia

A country with long history, first inhabitants in 10000 BC, the Paleolithic period

Independent country since 1960

Capital city is Nicosia, Lefkosia in Greek

Population just over 1m (848,300 in 2015)

Half of the island occupied by Turkey since 1974 after Turkey invaded the country

Member of the European Union since 2004

Member of the Eurozone since 2008, currency EURO

The most southeastern country of Europe

Native language is Greek, local dialect Cypriot
THE CYPRUS PROBLEM

- Cyprus is an independent country since 1960. There were two communities on the island, the Greek Cypriots (majority) and the Turkish Cypriots (minority) who lived for many years peacefully together.
- In 1963 there was a conflict between the two communities led by fanatic nationalist groups.
- On the 15th of July of 1974, a coup led by some Greek Cypriots with the help of the Dictatorial Government of Greece at the time overthrew the legal president of Cyprus, Makarios.
- Five days later on the 20th of July of 1974, Turkish troops invaded the island.
- As a result, Turkey took over the 38% of the island. This part is still occupied.
200 thousand Greek Cypriots had to leave by force their homes and come to the southern areas as refugees, thousands of people were killed and a number of people also still missing.

In 1985 the occupied areas were declared as independent forming the so-called "Northern Republic of Cyprus" which is recognized by Turkey but not recognized by the United Nations, or any other country.

Only since 2004 Greek Cypriots are allowed to “visit” their home-land, under conditions, e.g. showing a passport. Other country nationals can also visit the occupied area by showing a valid passport.

In case you decide to visit the occupied area do not accept to have a stamp on your passport, ask the guards at the crossing point to stamp you a blank piece of paper. The other part is not recognized as a different country. Make sure you cross the border through legal points.

Unfortunately a solution to the problem has not yet been achieved although talks are being held at the moment between the President of the Republic of Cyprus, the Leader of the Turkish Cypriot community and the United Nations in Geneva, Switzerland.

SOME TYPICAL CYPRIOT FOOD & DRINK YOU SHOULD DEFINITELY TRY

CYPRIOT MEZE – means “little delicacies”, could consist of as many as 30 small plates of savory dips and vegetables and a wide range of fish and meat dishes cooked in several different ways.

ZIVANIA: The Cypriot aperitif Zivania, with its strong aniseed flavor, is refreshing in warm weather.

COMMANDARIA: Commandaria, a sweet, fortified, dessert wine is unique to Cyprus. It was originally produced by the Knights of St. John at Kolossi in the Middle Ages and is reminiscent of medieval wine.
Some Typical Cypriot Food You Should Definitely Try

Loukanika: Pork sausages soaked in red wine and smoked seasoned with coriander and red pepper.
Koupepia: (Also known as Dolmades) Grape leaves stuffed with minced meat and rice seasoned with mint, onions and spices.
Lountza: smoked pork soaked in red wine.
Halloumi: White soft cheese (usually grilled when served as part of a Meze) made from either goat or sheep milk and sometimes spiced with peppermint.
Souvlaki: Cypriot Kebabs. Served either as succulent lamb cutlets, pork fillets, grilled chicken or as a combination of any or all of these.
Sheftalia: Grilled fresh sausage made of minced pork, chopped onions, bread crumbs, chopped parsley, white pepper and salt.
Keftedes: Deep fried crispy & spicy meatballs cooked in olive oil.
Afelia: Pork cubes marinated in wine and coriander.
Moussaka: Popular dish made of layers of sliced aubergines, courgettes, potatoes and minced meat topped with creamy bechamel sauce, baked in the oven.
Stiphado: Beef or rabbit stew casseroled with wine, vinegar, onions and spices.
Ofto kleftiko: Chunks of lamb cooked in a sealed clay oven and seasoned with pepper and bay leaves.
Tiganita kolokithakia: Fried zucchini, mixed with scrambled eggs and fresh parsley.
Tiganites melintzanes: Fried eggplants dipped in flour, fried and served hot.
Xoriatiki salata: Village salad, includes cabbage, lettuce, rucola, coriander, celery, spring onions, cucumbers, capers, olives, green peppers and feta cheese with a dressing made of olive oil lemon juice and salt.

PRACTICAL ISSUES FOR YOUR FIRST DAYS IN CYPRUS AND THE UNIVERSITY

Steps for Registration – PLEASE NOTE THAT AT THIS STAGE YOU HAVE NO ACCESS TO THE SYSTEM. IT WILL BE DONE MANUALLY FOR YOU

Step 1 - Fill in the Student Registration form (for undergraduate or postgraduate studies) You must have already completed your student registration forms and sent them to Chariklia by e-mail with copies of passports and 1st degrees in case of master students.

NEED TO DO NOW - Fill in the Course Registration form (for undergraduate or postgraduate studies) with the courses you have on your original SIGNED learning agreements and take them to the relevant department for the signature of the Erasmus Coordinator. Then you need to submit the signed forms to Chariklia starting from MONDAY 16/01/2017 and at the latest BY WEDNESDAY 18/01/2017. After submitting the forms to us (Chariklia) we will complete manually your registration and your access to the banner web (our electronic registration system)

YOU WILL NEED to make changes to your original selection of courses. Check the timetable of courses to be offered this semester and also check with the relevant department to find the new courses. Please make sure you agree the changes with your home universities before selecting new subjects. Every course has a University of Cyprus code called MAM (CRN) code. Please find out the correct MAM codes for the courses you will choose before you complete the forms.
